

Telephone Support Group for Women with Ovarian Cancer

CancerCare is currently planning a national support group for women with ovarian cancer which will meet on the telephone, free of charge.

Telephone support groups can be an important source of support and they are easily accessible for most everyone. For patients living in rural areas, patients who have limited mobility, or people with cancer who are working and unable to attend group meetings, this is particularly helpful.

These groups meet and are facilitated through the telephone by a professional oncology social worker. This group will provide the opportunity to: 1) share common concerns; 2) give and receive emotional support; 3) feel more connected with others who are encountering similar challenges; and 4) obtain and exchange information

To register for a group or for more information, contact Natalie Wilson, CSW at 1-800-813-4673 ext.6130 or complete and return the attached registration form.
